BROOKS RESIGNS AS TRIAL JUSTICE AFTER SERVING 7 MONTHS

The resignation of Gerry Brooks of Bethel as trial justice was announced Wednesday by Governor Edmund Muskie. He was appointed seven months ago, to receive a salary of $106 a year.

It is reported that Mr Brooks asked for more pay, due to the unexpected amount of time required by these duties, but the request was turned down because of the high salaries already paid by the County to the judges of municipal courts at Rumford, Norway and Fryeburg.

In his seven months as trial justice Mr Brooks collected about $3,800 in fines, a large amount compared with receipts of the municipal courts.

The end of the local service results in considerable inconvenience to both offenders and officers in the Bethel area, and waste of time in travel to courts at Norway or Rumford.

COMMENTS FROM THE TOWN MANAGER'S OFFICE

We recently laid a short section of sidewalk in front of the Odd Fellows Building. Monday work was started to replace the sidewalk from the corner of Main and Church Streets down past the drug store and Dr Tibbetts' residence. It is only with the splendid cooperation of the property owners and people who have business in this section that we are able to get as much sidewalk laid.

Mr Shields of the Oxford Paving Company has also been very helpful. Town trucks are being used to haul the Blue Rock Mix from Westbrook which makes a slight saving in the cost.

Thursday, November 10

Read Luke 16:10-13.

Unto whomsoever much is given, of him shall be much required. (Luke 12:48.)

SAID a layman to his pastor, "Sir, why don't you stop preaching to us about how we use our earthly possessions, and, instead simply preach the gospel?" The layman did not like the emphasis on the stewardship of possessions.

Thinking of the layman's question as a challenge, the pastor began to study the Master's teachings on the stewardship of property. He found that the Gospel of Matthew contains over one hundred references to the subject; Mark, more than fifty; Luke and John, almost one hundred each. In truth, Jesus spoke five times as often about earthly possessions as on any other subject.

At a glance the fair-minded person sees that the Master considered stewardship a very important subject. He did not evade it, nor does He expect the shepherds of souls to do so.

Every person who begins the practice of stewardship of his possessions does so as an adventure of faith, only to find his life enriched beyond all that he hoped or thought possible.

Prayer

O God, we thank Thee for the privilege to be channels of Thy blessings. Keep us humble. Discipline us to the purposes of Thy kingdom both in personal service and through stewardship of all possessions entrusted to us. In His name. Amen.

West Paris High School News

The staff of the 1956 Nautilus Board, headed by editor Rosalie Curtis and assistant editor Virginia Hibler, has been reorganized. Douglas Perham and James Todd have been chosen to work with veteran business managers Myrn Halme and Stanley Hibler. Their job of securing advertisements has been successfully completed. Other members of the student body, who will be working together toward the publication of the 1956 Nautilus are Athletic Editors, Felicia Collette, Mark Sundelin; Alumni Editor, Starr Andrews; Art Editor, Philip Waterhouse; Senior Editor, Alli Immonen; Class Reporters, Sheila Heath, Donna Andrews, Mary Jane Abbott; Activities Editor, Shirley Ellingwood; Exchange Editor, Louise Gammon.

During October the Junior Class was busy with activities to increase their treasury funds. Food sales and recess sales have been among their projects. The Oxford Roller Rink was the scene of a successful skating party sponsored by the Juniors. To highlight the month a TV talent show was staged in the gymnasium. The program included banjo and guitar playing, dancing, and singing. People were pleased to see the Mulkern Boys again after last year's appearance at West Paris.

In observance of American Education Week, the faculty and student body of West Paris High sponsored "open house," Wednesday, Nov. 9, to which the public was invited. At 7 o'clock there was a general assembly in the gymnasium with James Todd as announcer: Musical Selection, High School Orchestra; Prayer; Presentation of colors, James Todd, Norman Millett; American Creed; Flag Salute; Radio Script, "Reading and ———", Mrs Ford—Rosalie Curtis, Janice — Eleanor Coffin, Miss Everett—Felicia Collette, Mr Wayne —Wayne Penley, Miss Carter — Shirley Ellingwood; Remarks, Supt Libby; Radio Script — "It Takes Time", Mr Ferris—Douglas Perham, Mrs Ferris—Nancy Yates, Don Ferris—Mark Sundelin, Mr Shaw—Wayne Hayes.

On October 26, pupils throughout the country were taking National Merit Scholarship Tests in competition for one of the many scholarships awarded by the corporation. At West Paris, Rosalie Curtis was the National Merit Scholarship candidate.

One day last week George Viles from the South Paris Savings Bank addressed the general business class. His discussion on the history of money and banking added much interest to the material being studied.

Economic Highlights . . . .

Happenings That Affect the Future of Every Individual — National and International Problems Inseparable from Local Welfare.

"The Capital is now engaged in the usual quadrennial diversion of hanging political labels on the Presidential candidates and dividing them into heroes and villains," writes James Reston, Washington correspondent of the New York Times. "This labeling operation is part of the story-telling and myth-making industry in Washington—a vast enterprise—and is a great convenience because it enables the voter to avoid thinking or dealing with the facts."

Of course, this method of evaluating candidates has very serious drawbacks. For one thing, even Presidential candidates are human beings—which means that they aren't all hero or all villian, but a mixture of diverse and complex elements. And for another, they, like other people, can and often do change. Mr Reston says, "This is one of the most interesting aspects of the 1956 campaign: that while the cast of characters is familiar, it cannot be assumed that the men themselves are precisely the same, or that they conform to their political reputations."

He quotes Woodrow Wilson's famous remark, to the effect that some men grow and some merely swell. He points out that "the history of American politics is full of men who seemed shallow and inadequate at one period in their lives but who changed out of all recognition later on." And he deals with possible major transformations that have taken place with some of the potential candidates. It's interesting to note that he believes that changes for the better have occurred in two men who stand high in the political firmament at this time—Richard Nixon and Adlai Stevenson.

This matter of change— in maturity, judgment, understanding of issues—is certainly an important one and deserves heavy emphasis. The two national committees will attempt to white-wash their own people and apply the tar-brush to the opposition. They will try to make emotion the master of logic. And the uncritical voter must inevitably be sadly misled.

Coming to specific matters, the political fires are burning bright these days. The President's illness and the generally held belief that this will preclude his running again have changed the picture drastically. On the Democratic side, particularly, there is a fever of activity. Stevenson is still the best bet —but by no means a sure bet. Senator Kefauver has proven himself a power in past primaries, and he is in the running again. Governor Harriman seems to be looked on favorably by Mr Truman. And Mr Truman is the greatest single force in his party.

On the Republican side, a Gallup poll made after the President's illness indicates the prevailing winds. The five top-runners were as follws: Nixon, favored by 23 per cent of those polled; Warren, by 24 per cent; Dewey, by 10 per cent; Stassen, by 10 per cent; Dulles, by 9 per cent. Thus only Justice Warren gave the Vice-President a close race in public favor. And the Justice has shown by inclination to alter his attitude of two years ago, when he said that he would not be a candidate under any circumstances.

Finally, going beyond politics, a paragraph by David Lawrence, appearing in U S News & World Report, certainly seems relevant. He said: "It is a time for the heart of America to be revealed. It is a time to speak with one accord to the other peoples of the world and to tell them that the American people—no matter who is chosen as a successor in the Presidency—expect to continue to seek peace in the self-same spirit of human love so simply expressed by Dwight Eisenhower."

Michaud had been bound over to the November term of Superior Court following an automobile accident at Canton in which Joseph Cormeau, alias Thomas Cormier, was killed. Michaud was found guilty of operating while under the influence of intoxicating liquor, Oct. 22 in Rumford Municipal Court.

Four indictments charging uttering and two charging forgery were found against Arthur Martin, 33, of Rumford. An assault and battery indictment was returned against Ralph B Smith, about 55, of Peru. The offense was against Helen Thomas of Peru, Aug. 17.

Four indictments were returned against Paul F McDonald, 29, of Boston, two for uttering and two for forgery, all occurring Aug. 29 in Norway. A larceny indictment was returned against Duncan V Patterson, about 53, commorant, of Waterford, charged with stealing a typewriter on July 22, valued at $145.50, property of John Houle of Waterford.

A second indictment charged Patterson with false pretenses, resulting from clothing being bought July 22 from John F Pike at Norway.

Two counts of forgery and uttering were against Phillip Ranville, 22, of Farmington, offenses occurring Sept. 1, at Rumford, value $100.

Richard Austin, Rumford, was indicted on a breaking, entering and larceny charge involving the camp of Fred C French, Aug. 6, at Andover North Surplus.

Austin and Roger Gionet, Rumford, were indicted for breaking, entering and larceny at the same location at the camp of John J Kirby.

Richard Austin, Gerald Austin, and Roger Gionet, all about 20, of Rumford, were indicted for breaking, entering and larceny, Aug. 6, at the camp of Guy Patterson, Andover North Surplus.

Nothing is more honorable than a grateful heart. —Lucius Annaeus Seneca

GOULD ACADEMY

Gould 23—Fryeburg 7

Gould Academy came thru with the best game of the year in the finale on a rain-soaked field at Fryeburg last Saturday. The Huskies scored first after a long pass, J Reid to Jenkes, set up the score. Lamson skirted end for 5 yards to score and then added the extra point with his first of 3 successful points after.

Fryeburg rallied to tie the score in the second period as Buzzell passed 25 yards to Leeman for the TD. The extra point by Buzzell tied the game up. Another nice pass by Jack Reid, this time to Lamson, put Gould in scoring position again. On the last play of the first half Al Lamson carried the final 8 yards for the second touchdown With the point after Gould led 14-7 at the half.

In the second half the home team never threatened but they did fumble once and Gould recovered. With Smith, Murphy, and Lamson carrying for long gains the Huskies were on the 10 yd. line. On the next play Jim Murphy scampered over and with Lamson's third perfect place-kick the winners led 21-7. With Fryeburg on their own 3 yard line they tried a play but were thrown behind the goal line for a safety and another 2 points to make the final score 23-7.

This game ended the football careers of a number of seniors. Those who played their last game for the "Blue and Gold" were Captain Howard Brush, Joe Stevens, Joe Watson, Bob Crane, Al Lamson, Dan Lane, Ken Rafuse, and Jeff DiBlaso. Other injured Seniors who did not get into the game are Harry Reid, Norm Hill, and Dave Willard.

Treasure Hunt

Eleven carloads of treasure hunters left the Church School Sunday morning to follow their clues to the "treasure." This year the clues were in the form of rhymes about individuals who had to be identified and located. Each rhyme also had to be matched with the Mother Goose rhyme of which it was a parody. The clues led them to several places in Sumner, Oxford, Norway, Bryant Pond, West Paris and Woodstock. The final clue directed them to the West Sumner Grange Hall for dinner. As each car arrived, they were required to recite the Mother Goose rhymes. Each car that completed the hunt received a box of candy. Mrs Mary Fleming and Mrs Myrtle Thurlow arranged and directed the treasure hunt, which is an annual event.

Conservation Farming In Oxford County

by Douglas L. Marston
Soil Conservation Service

Last week with its frequent rains, prevented any great amount of field work, but Walter Olpe of Brownfield was able to plant 3000 trees with the new Oxford County Soil Conservation District tree planter.

The land planted was on a sand plain, bordering Pequawket Pond. The area was only lightly covered with debris and shrubs so no bulldozer was needed to clear from in front of the planter.

A small crawler tractor, without a blade, was used to haul the planter and the 3000 trees were planted in 3½ hours. There were some stumps, old dead trees, and scattered grey birch and scrub oak, but these did not bother to any extent. From what experience we have had with the new planter it would seem that about 1000 trees could be planted per hour in open fields and about 500 trees per hour in brushland where clearing with a bulldozer is necessary.

Willie Heikkinen of West Paris constructed a fine pond on his farm this summer. Mr Heikkinen plans to stock it with trout and also use the pond for livestock water.

Elizabeth Richards. Mrs Richards plans to go to Andover Wednesday night this week and from there to Teachers' Convention at Rumford Thursday.

Mr and Mrs Antone Corrica, who spent a week at their summer cottage just recently, have returned to their home in East Providence, R. I.

The Parent-Teachers meeting was held at the schoolhouse Monday evening Nov. 7th, with the President, Mrs Mae Goodrum in the chair. Mrs Elizabeth Richards entertained and was on refreshment committee.

BUTTER IS TO EAT

In April, 1954, Secretary Benson cut the support price on butter, amid a great clamor of protest. At that time, years of support at 90 per cent of parity had combined to cut down the consumption of butter and increase the government's aging and deteriorating store of it. People were eating margarine and butter was flowing into government storage at the rate of two to two and a half million pounds a day.

In 12 years, the average American had cut his annual butter use from 16.7 pounds to 8.8pounds. Margarine consumption went up from 1.9 pounds to 7.8 pounds in the same period.

Some of this was the result of better advertising and distribution methods for margarine, but most of it certainly was the price appeal of the unsupported product. Butter was being supported out of the market.

But look what has happened since the support was lowered. At the rate they are going, Americans will eat an average of 9.3 pounds of butter per capita this year, while margarine is taking its first dip in consumption in six years. At the same time government stocks are headed downward....

Another better way has been demonstrated by the Florida orange growers. Instead of calling for support prices, they have taken full advantage of modern marketing methods. First canned orange juice and then frozen juice have increasingly taken care of the surplus fruit. The use of frozen juice has quadrupled in five years....

Butter has not run that way. Packaging has been improved, in neat quarter-pound wrappings, over the old cut-it-out of a tub selling. But the progress in that direction has been slight. The possibilities of fresh, unsalted butter have not been explored. Spreads like butter and honey or butter and maple sugar have not been developed.

Support prices are the worst possible answer to a surplus. New and attractive uses give far greater hope.—Boston Herald.

Percy Hodgdon, of Wiscasset, is a farmer who's looking to the future. He has put to work in his woodlots the principles he learned from Extension Service agents over a period of nearly 25 years and has observed the results of his work. Hodgdon was the first Tree Farmer in Lincoln County.

Skaters badge, Carol Keoskie, Susan Boynton and Sharon York.—Sec., Carol Keoskie.

Nancy and Debbie and Sue each taught us a dance and we practiced square dancing. Jackie brought a pretty pink cake and we had Kool-Aid. Debbie and Margaret to bring refreshments next week.—Norma Kimball, reporter.
